The Georgetown advantage

Georgetown University was founded in 1789, the same year the U.S. Constitution took effect, with a dozen students, a few professors and limitless aspirations. John Carroll, Archbishop of Baltimore and founder, was inspired by the principles of the Constitution to create a college that would embrace every religious persuasion, cultivate the art of critical thinking, and foster an insightful search for truth.

Nestled on the banks of the Potomac River, our Washington, D.C. location provides unparalleled access to cultural, political and intellectual resources. For over two centuries the strength of our Catholic and Jesuit heritage, diversified academic programs and renowned scholars have educated the whole person in preparation for a life of leadership and service. As evidenced by the distinguished accomplishments of so many Georgetown University alumni, our graduates are uniquely qualified to address the complex and ever-changing demands of the global marketplace.

Georgetown undergraduate students represent a wide variety of cultural backgrounds, perspectives and experiences; in fact, admitted students hail from all fifty states and from 100 countries around the world. Over 30% of admitted students are from minority backgrounds and one-third of our students are fluent in more than one language. Overall, 99% of entering students graduated in the top 50% of their high school classes and continue the course of excellence and achievement during their time at Georgetown and beyond.
